South End Wilding

Some of you here will not even know what that is, but it is new and is work in progress; .. perhaps, in nature, it will always be work in progress!

Where the old scout hut was, at the southern end of Molly Minns Lane, the Parish Council has allowed and supported the idea of an area devoted to wilding, which soon will be open access to all. Work has only just started and plans will develop as circumstances and wild plants develop. There are areas of sunlight and of woodland shade.

Already in outline there is a winding path the length of the area, west to east, and already built are three bays for collecting leaves and green matter for composting since such reusing and renewal fulfil the intentions for the wilding. Three more such bays, made from reused pallets, are planned.

As you pass by, expect the area to look, to the tidy gardener's eye, rather neglected, but please remember that an area of wilding is the point!
